And "Falsification of liberty," trial by jury. But it is not also a mistake to retain the paraphernalia of Courts of Justice? It is a mistake to suppose that the Judge of a specially constituted Court, who should be expected to be intolerant of the formalities and intricacies of regular trials.

In the next place, is it not suggestive of a maxim that a man who is accused to have committed offences against the law should be ordered one day to leave the town, and thus be granted the opportunity of escaping from the hands of justice, and that he should be brought up next day in custody, to be sentenced to an indefinite term of imprisonment? In the first instance, the offender, standing red-handed in presence of the Judge, having committed his offence "under the very eyes of the Court," is allowed to go free, if he will only remove himself from the vicinity of the place of justice. In the second instance, without doing anything more to incur the Court's displeasure, he is seized and subjected to a penalty suitable to a crime of considerable magnitude. We do not underestimate the gravity of either offence—perjury or tampering with witnesses; but the Judge who viewed them in such different lights on two successive days exposed himself to the remark that his judgment must have been at fault either on the one day or on

The District Judge seems to have concluded, on reflection, that the man ought to be punished, and that the best way of making his punishment both sure and adequate was to dispense with the formalities and intricacies of trial by jury, and to take the matter entirely into his own hands. He had convicted the man already in his own mind, and all that remained was to satisfy himself as to the punishment. We are not prepared to say that in pursuing this course the District Judge exceeded the power which judicial functionaries in the higher Courts have been in the habit of claiming. But if it be admitted that he acted with full legal authority, then, so much the worse for the legal authority of the law that sanctions such proceedings ought to be altered. Courts exist, not to make laws of the mob.

On the 20th of last May, the Legislative Assembly ordered that there should be laid upon the table of the House "a copy of each of the various forms of Crown grant issued since the passing of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861." The order was obeyed with little more promptitude than many orders issued by the same authority; perhaps, because nobody was sufficiently interested to set in motion the usual machinery of delay. For the same reason, it is possible that the information is a little fuller and more definite than it would otherwise have been; for, somehow, it happens that official returns are usually made the most vague and inconclusive exactly when definiteness and accuracy are most essentially required.

According to this return, it appears that there are no less than thirty-five forms of Crown grant in the (Yorke) shires.

the Act of 1891 came into operation. What a charming simplicity this must secure for the proceedings under the law of real property! Looked at from one side, it must be a good title indeed that cannot be made good by any other title; one of these thirty-five forms, but looked at from the other side, it must be a marvellously good title that cannot be subjected to litigation with such a latitude of legal objection. Looked at from either side, there must be much doubt that the law that must be very profitable to the lawyers, whatever its results may be to their clients.

Considering these different forms of title, we may classify them under nine different heads. There are twelve forms of general purchase: four of municipal and other reserves; one to the Council of Education; four each to the Church of England, the Roman Catholic, Wesleyan, and Presbyterian Churches; one for general cemeteries and one for public hospitals. There are two forms for land purchased at auction, one for selections after auction, two for improvement purchases, one for reclaimed land, one for land on reserved reserves, two for Volunteer land orders, one for mining selections, and two for conditional purchases. All these are necessary, on so account of the different ways in which land may be purchased under the provisions of the Act. The grant from the Crown specifies the consideration for which the land is conveyed to the fee simple to the purchaser, and defines the reservations still retained by the Crown.

regard to the reservations there is the most inappreciable diversity. For land purchased at auction the Crown reserves so much as may afterwards be required for public ways, canals, or railroads, "all sand, clay, stone, gravel, indigenous timber, and all other materials the natural produce of the said land," with "the right of ingress, egress, and regress, for the purposes aforesaid." For land conditionally purchased the Crown reserves, in addition to the above rights, "all minerals which the said land contains," and also "all land within one hundred feet of high water mark on the sea coast, and on every creek, harbour, and inlet of the sea." For town lots purchased at auction the only reservation is of land for public drains or sewers; and to this coal mining is added in the case of town lots purchased under the improvement provisions of the Act, while improvements purchases in the country, and selections after auction anywhere, are subject to the same reservation as country lands bought at auction. The grants to each of the four Churches are for church and school buildings, clergymen's residences, and cemeteries, and the reservations are of gold, silver, and coal mines, with the exception of Presbyterian churches, schools, and cemeteries, in respect to which nothing is reserved except reversion of the land to the Crown upon violation of the trusts. Why should all these distinctions exist in titles to real estate derived directly from the Crown? The mere enumeration of them shows how chaotic our mode of alienating the public estate must be; and that no principle of either right or expediency has been observed in determining what should be reserved to the public and what conveyed to private owners.

Neither in the Act of 1861 nor that of 1875 is there any definition of what rights should be reserved to the Crown under any form of sale. But the former Act gives power to the Governor in Council to make regulations as to "forms of grants and other instruments," which became valid in law upon publication in the Gazette, after being laid upon the table of both Houses of Parliament. Upon what authority, then, has it been decided that all minerals and 100 foot frontage to the sea shall be reserved under free selection for instance, but not under auction sales, improved purchases, and selections after auction? Up to the close of last year the gross area free selected throughout the colony was 13,005,922 acres, and the total area sold other than conditionally since the Act came into operation was 8,673,521 acres. The price fixed by law for the former is 21 per acre, which is also the minimum price for the latter. The actual price for the whole of this area unconditionally sold averaged 41s. 6d. per acre, which is an advance of only 8 per cent. upon the minimum price. Allowing for deferred payments, the free selectors have got their land at a price less by 18 per cent. than the average paid by other purchasers up to the close of last year. Is that the reason why "all minerals" are reserved in one case and not in the other? Are the gold, coal, copper, tin, and all other minerals which have already been or will hereafter be, discovered to lie under a half million acres, worth no more than this difference in price? To take our coal-fields alone, it is estimated that a coal seam gives about a million tons per foot of thickness for every square mile, and taking the price at a very low average, the seams already known to exist in this colony beneath the surface of about twenty million acres, are probably worth twenty thousand pounds sterling per acre. No doubt many centuries must elapse before the whole of this reserve of motive power will be absorbed in the world's industries; but why should it pass away from the State and become private property on such singularly inadequate terms? If it be said that our auriferous and carboniferous lands are nearly all reserved already, and that auction buyers of country lands buy only the chance of future discoveries, the reply is that they will lose nothing if no minerals are discovered, and if they are, it is but right that the State should have the benefit of those treasures which nature has stored up for the good of all. The grass and the trees will grow again, with due care every crop and every new forest will be equal to if not better than its predecessors. But gold, coal, copper, tin, iron, if once removed are removed for ever, and can never be reproduced. Thus it is that the free selectors are permitted to buy absolutely the surface only, and the price of land to other buyers is no equivalent for the value of the minerals, and is higher than the price to free selectors, only because it is not encumbered with conditions for residence and improvement. On both classes of purchases sand, clay, stone, gravel and indigenous timber are reserved so far as the Crown can conveniently require them, and the more valuable products of nature on one and not on the other. The whole of these thirty-five years of grant require careful revision with a view to some equity of procedure, and if the law itself could be simplified and divested of its complicated and conflicting provisions, there would be less work for the law Courts, greater security for settlers, and more justice to the general public.

In his address at the Sacred Heart, on Sunday last, Dr. Vaughan repeated the opposition to the Pastoral as nothing but the revival of the "No Popery" cry. He either did not know better, or he did not. If he did, he was misleading his flock, and if he thought he did it out this might damage his prestige. If he did not, it would not hurt him, even if he is the origin of infidelity, truth, to become acquainted with the facts of the case. It would be wiser the truth to say that the Pastoral was a "No Public Schools" cry, and that the popular agitation was a reply and a retort. The question at issue is really a political one, and it is only made ecclesiastical and theological by the arguments that come from the Catholic party. It is made ecclesiastical in virtue of the discipline which lies at the basis of the hierarchical position, and it is made theological by the arguments that the Archbishop adduces. Thus, for instance, the Archbishop, although he condescends to reason occasionally, really rests the force of his appeal on his auditors, on the ground that he is expounding the voice of an infallible Church. In a community, three-fourths of which are Protestants, we are called upon to change our national policy in obedience to this dictate. What answer can we possibly give, but to deny the alleged infallibility, and to assert that, from the Pope downwards, all the arguments of the alleged infallibility are just as fallible as we ourselves, and in fact more subject to a perverted view, exactly in proportion as they believe in an imaginary exemption from error. But to call this "no-infallibility" argument, extorted from us as it is, a "No Popery" cry is a misrepresentation. We may say the same of nearly all the arguments that Dr. Vaughan has adduced, so far as they relate to the character and qualifications of his Church. He has made a host of statements about the purity, the patriotism, the peacefulness, the gentleness of Catholicism, and has based his arguments thereon in such a way as to make it impossible to deal with the case as he submitted it, except by denying the facts and appealing to history against him. It is unnecessary in the highest degree that a disputant who has provoked all these retorts should complain of them, and that he who has made not only the reply, but even the very form of the reply a necessity, should complain of the tone which is but the echo of his own song.

Mr. BERRY has carried the second reading of his Reform Bill by a majority which is really surprising. The division, of course, was a party one, and it is difficult to believe that those who voted for it either expected the bill to become law, or even wished it. What Victoria really wants is that its Constitution should be so re-arranged as to popularize the Legislative Council, and make disputes between the two Houses terminable. Any rational person can see that this may be done by means of the proposals which the Council itself, and Mr. Stanger, as the leader of the Opposition, have submitted. If the Constitution were so re-arranged as to amend it, there would be very little chance of difficulty in the future; and it is simply untrue to say that there is any difficulty, either in the Council or in the Opposition, in getting necessary changes passed. There is no room for argument in the matter, because the fact is patent to every impartial observer that all the changes can be effected within the colony, and that there is no need to go outside for additional powers. But what Mr. BERRY wants is to do something that is more than necessary, and to this excess neither the Council nor the Opposition will consent. Mr. BERRY's mission to England and Scotland is a promise of immediate success, and a promise of immediate success, which the Council refused to accept; but judged by English notions, his measure is not a reasonable measure, and the comments of the London journals which have been indicated in our telegram show the view that English politicians are likely to take of his proposals. The bill is so framed through and through that it is possible enough that some members who voted for the second reading in order to save the Government may support such alterations in committee as will radically alter the bill.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Russian expedition in Central Asia has met with a serious reverse, having been defeated by the Turkic forces with a loss of 700 men. This, however, will probably have the effect of leading to increased exertions on the part of the Russians to gain their ends, with the result, possibly, that they will get a stronger foothold in Turkistan than they may at first have contemplated. The most interesting part of the morning's cable news relates to the relations of Germany and Austria. Prince Bismarck and Count Andrassy are said to have arrived at a complete understanding regarding a common policy to be pursued by Austria and Germany jointly to check Russian aggression, and it is understood that an alliance between the two Powers has been entered into for this object. The Austro-German friendship is extended to England, and the English Press is said to warmly approve of the understanding between Germany and her neighbour, Russia, if we may judge from the St. Petersburg Press, is also seeking to foster an entente cordiale with England, having a special eye to possible agreement in the Balkan Peninsula. The Russian Press, on the other hand, is busy in fomenting recent disturbances in Afghanistan.

To-day is the popular day at the International Exhibition, and from what we are able to learn there is almost certain to be a very large attendance. Special efforts have been made by exhibitors to show everything to advantage, and visitors will therefore have nothing to complain of. As there is, in addition, the celebration of its anniversary, there is to be some very grand music, as will be seen by advertisement elsewhere. On the opening day, some little confusion was occasioned by people passing through the galleries, and up and down the staircases in an indiscriminate manner. It may not be out of place to suggest the propriety of the Commission stationing constables at the various staircases, so as to direct the traffic in one direction. This would without impediment. At a meeting of the Commission, yesterday, it was stated that the receipts up to Wednesday evening had amounted to £6815. A fruit show is to be held in the eastern tower of the exhibition Palace to-day. It is not one of the regular series contemplated, but one extemporized at the request of some of the fruit growers. If not imposing, it will add a little to the entertainments of the day.

The usual fortnightly committee meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held on Thursday, when the Mayor was in the chair, and Aldermen Palmer, Chapman, Harris, Kippen, Taylor, Playfair, Fowler, and others were present. Accounts amounting to £1072 5s. 6d. were examined and recommended for payment. A discussion arose on the desirability of retaining Mr. Stacey and Mr. Passfield for their prompt services at the dams at Botany and the Lachlan Swamps during the recent floods, and the question was left in the hands of the Mayor to deal with as he chose. It was resolved to acquiesce in Mr. Stacey's request to be permitted to have sewage from the Prince Alfred Hospital drained into the Blackwattle Swamp sewer. A letter from J. J. Read, clerk proprietor, was read, complaining that, in consequence of a hole in the sewer in connection with St. James's school being left open, his horse had fallen into it, injuring itself, and damaging the cab harness to the extent of £100, which amount he claimed as damages. The Mayor said the City Engineer had reported that the hole had been left open by a private person, and therefore the Corporation was not liable. The Clerk said a writ for £250 had been served upon the Corporation in connection with the matter. Alderman Chapman moved—that the writ be sent to the City Solicitor, and that the City Engineer be requested to report again as to why the hole had been permitted to remain open. The resolution was agreed to. Several of the aldermen ventilated grievances, and the meeting terminated.

The weekly meeting of the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners was held yesterday morning at the offices in Phillip-street. There were present—His Worship the Mayor, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Chapman, and the usual routine business was transacted. The only extraordinary episode was the attendance of a deputation of cabmen, on behalf of the members of that vocation, objected to some proposed innovations in the traffic regulations. First and most important is the system by which a cabman is required to provide a certificate of fitness, and is liable to penalties and regulations under which he works; but no tenable argument against this was brought. They next objected to the regulation touching the vehicles they provide as substitutes in case of accident to their cabs; but on this point it appeared that there had been some misapprehension, and that the rule made by the Commissioners was a perfectly fair one. A full report will be found in another column.

His Worship the Mayor, accompanied by the aldermen and some of the principal officers of the City Council, paid an official visit to H. I. G. M. S. Bismarck, on Thursday morning last. The vessel was profusely decorated with bunting on the occasion, and the visitors were received at the gangway by Captain Delahand and his officers as a guard of honour. After inspection of the vessel throughout, Captain Delahand hospitably entertained his Worship and his party in the main saloon, and expressed the pleasure he felt in receiving the city representatives. It is understood that the official visit will be returned by Captain Delahand, at the Town Hall, at 11 o'clock on Tuesday next.

Ten much litigated cases of "Hungerford v. Davenport and others," and "Davenport and others v. Hungerford," were finally settled yesterday by the full Court in each case discharging the rule nisi for a new trial with costs. The effect of the decisions will be that Mr. Hungerford will hold his verdict for £10,000 and Messrs. Davenport and Fisher will hold their verdict for £500.

Ten questions of the Australian Mutual Provident Society were issued to members yesterday. In another column we give the directors' report and a digest of the actuary's report. The profits now to be divided will yield a rate of bonus larger than that declared at the last division to every member who then participated, while new members of this quinquennial will receive a better bonus than that allotted to members similarly situated at the last investigation. The total surplus of the quinquennial amounts to £355,200; and after certain adjustments and reserves have been provided for, the actuary has recommended that the sum of £489,328 be allotted for distribution among the members entitled to participate. The sum of £13,138 has already been paid to the representatives of members who died during the last five years, so that the total dividend profit of the quinquennial amounts to £504,382. The surplus now to be allotted will produce reversionary bonuses amounting to £1,020,868. That sum has been apportioned to the members, and bonus certificates will be issued immediately after the meeting, which is to be held in the new building on Tuesday next.

The Rev. Thomas Kemmis gave his literary entertainment entitled "Grave and Gay," at the Oddfellows' Hall, Ashfield, on Thursday evening, in behalf of the funds of the Dolroyds Sabbath-school. There was a numerous and highly appreciative audience, and the chair was occupied by Mr. Samuel Dickinson. The Rev. gentleman lays little claim to originality in constructing his entertainment, as it consists of nothing more than the reading and recital of a number of literary extracts, most of them gems in their way, collected from a variety of sources and so arranged that the speaker delivered his piece in a totally new manner from its predecessor. By thus alternating the style and being naturally possessed of great versatility from an elocutionary point of view, the Rev. gentleman has done good service in this entertainment to many authors of whose works little is known, by giving them the chance of selection from them. The audience testified their approval throughout by repeated applause. A vote of thanks was moved to the Rev. gentleman by Mr. Hugh Robinson, and seconded by Mr. Moser; and in acknowledging the same Mr. Kemmis stated that, although the object of the lecture was not directly connected with his own Church, he was glad to take the opportunity of forwarding the interests of all Sabbath-schools in which the common creed of love for Christ and dependence on Him was inculcated. He freely offered his services in a similar capacity on any future occasion if the committee of the church considered that they were worthy of acceptance. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings.

The pupils of the Pittwater Preparatory Sabbath-school were held at Clontarf, Middle Harbour, last Wednesday. In consequence of the very inclement weather it had been postponed from the previous Wednesday week. The day was all that could be desired, and about 450 children left by the first boat in high glee at the bright prospects. On landing, the usual games were indulged in, such as football, cricket, and others, &c. At 11 o'clock the hall was for dinner, and all the junior scholars sat down in rows. Grace having been sung, the boys of provisions were speedily demolished. The teachers and senior scholars dined in one of the pavilions. The first boat returned at 4.50 with most of the juveniles, and the last landed the passengers safely in Sydney by 7.30. We are happy to state that the picnic was marred by the festivities, and all seemed to have thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

On Wednesday next, at the Tramway and Omnibus Company's office, King-street, the first lottery in connection with the ticket system will be drawn, and every care will be taken to prove its bona-fide nature by careful supervision. The Transit Commissioners were asked to superintend the drawing, but they promptly declined to do so in their official capacity, though it is likely that they will be present.

A TELEGRAM in the Argus of Wednesday reports that in the Legislative Council of South Australia, on Tuesday, in reply to Mr. Fisher, Mr. Morgan said that since he had forwarded the despatch on September 3 he had received no further communication, nor had he further addressed the Victorian Government on the subject of the ocean mail service. He did not think there was any cause to fear for the position of South Australia in this matter. If the Victorian Government chose to throw away the £15,000 or £10,000 that South Australia would contribute, this Government could adopt other means of having the mail service maintained. The P. and O. Company had behaved very well to this colony, but negotiations with another company no doubt had something to do with the determination of the P. and O. Company not to pass South Australia by. The Government would take a firm stand to secure the interests of the colony. The proposed alteration, that they were not disposed to support, and that they were not disposed to support the Victorian Government, but that the (South Australian Ministry) had treated the Victorian Government courteously, although no answers were for a long time received, and when received they were curt. The Register, referring to the late Melbourne telegram, says it would appear that this colony will be driven into making a distant arrangement with some company for the conveyance of the South Australian mails. This is to be regretted, but it would be simply suicidal to accept the grossly unfair conditions which Victoria seems to impose.

A MEETING of the delegates of the friendly societies of New South Wales was held on Thursday evening at the Protestant Hall, Castlereagh-street, to consider the advisability of having a monster demonstration in support of the "Princess of Wales" Birthday. The friends present were Mr. J. H. Dods, as secretary pro tem, read the advertisement convening the meeting, and requested the members present to elect a chairman. Mr. D. M. Beath, J.P., was then unanimously chosen to preside, and Messrs. J. H. Dods and C. T. Pease were appointed joint hon. secretaries, and Mr. R. B. Balle treasurer. The first resolution was—"That this meeting be of opinion it is desirable to hold a grand national demonstration of the various friendly societies of New South Wales on Prince of Wales' Birthday." This motion, owing to the erratic behaviour of some gentlemen present, caused a large amount of discussion; but ultimately it was carried by a large majority. The next resolution was—"That the demonstration be held on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock, at the Protestant Hall, Castlereagh-street." Several amendments were proposed, but all were rejected. A programme of more than ordinary excellence has been arranged.

It was invited to be stated in our report of the proceedings of the opening of the Walden School of Arts that during the evening, in the interval between the first and second parts of the concert, the president, Mr. Nelson, on behalf of the committee, presented to Mr. T. W. Binny, secretary to the Newcastle and Wallend Coal Mining Company, a very handsome inkstand, as a small recognition of his kindness in laying the foundation stone of the building in the shape of a hand, and for his efforts in the cause of the school. The inkstand was supplied by Messrs. Flavell, Brothers, and was of beautiful workmanship.

In the tabular statement of the number of electors in each electoral district of the colony, which we published yesterday, the number for the past year was stated to be 6092. It should have been 4908. The total number of electors on the rolls for 1878-9 was 170,417; on the rolls for 1879-80, the number is 175,325.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN NEW ZEALAND.

[BY CABLE.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

WELLINGTON, FRIDAY.
At a meeting of the Opposition to-day it was decided that Mr. Hall shall move an amendment directly after the address in reply is moved and seconded. The amendment affirms the readiness of the House to adopt liberal measures desired by the country, but intimates to His Excellency the Governor that the House has no confidence in the Government as now constituted. The Opposition are confident of a small majority.

It is understood that the legality of Sir George Grey's election for Chairmanship is doubtful, on the ground of his having been elected for the Thames before he was nominated for Christchurch.

PETERHAM RAILWAY STATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me, through the medium of your paper, to draw attention to the dangerous practice of shunting the railway engines at the above terminus, as soon as the train arrives. I have seen more than one narrow gauge engine shunted just as it is about to start, and to cross, and strangers are not aware that the engine is to be detached. Surely the driver could wait two or three minutes, or better still, let the authorities erect a footbridge at the western gate, or extend the present one right across the lines to the street. This latter, though slightly more expensive, would be the better course. Doubtless when a life has been sacrificed something will be done.

Yours, &c.,
PETERHAM.

PARRAMATTA.

FRIDAY.

His Excellency the Governor has promised to attend the local Horticultural Society's spring show next week.

NEWCASTLE.

FRIDAY.

The new arrivals at Waratah Colliery are working steadily, and everything is quiet in the district. The company are receiving fresh applications daily for work. The steamer Waratah loads a full cargo of the Waratah Company's coal tonight.

A man, name unknown, was seen to jump off Bullock Island Wharf yesterday, and deliberately drove himself into the body of a man recovered to-day and lodged in the dead-house. Deceased appears to be a coal miner or labouring man, aged about 35.

The export of coal for the week amounted to 24,162 tons, and of coals, 5 tons.

COPELAND NORTH.

FRIDAY.

A managerial inquiry was held to-day upon the body of a man named John Onge, aged 84 years, who was found dead in a hut yesterday. A verdict was returned of death from natural causes.

In No. 1 East Mountain Road Reef the tunnel is upwards of 15 inches under foot and showing still better gold. The Right-hand branch machine proprietors have taken the initiative in reference to reducing charges for crushing, and announce a sliding scale 1/6s. to 4/1 per ton, according to the richness of the yield.

LITHGOW.

FRIDAY.

A special train came from Sydney to-day with a number of foreign visitors, who inspected the local works and the Zigzag. It was rumoured that some of the railway authorities were also here to determine the site of the station, especially as the Commissioners passed through to Orange this morning, but little credence can be given to the rumour.

One of the local companies is throwing open some land for building allotments, which will supply a great want.

The weather is beautifully fine and cool.

BATHURST.

FRIDAY.

This morning, at the Police Court, rather an interesting case was tried, as it was the first heard here under the Friendly Societies' Act. James Whelan, a member of the Bathurst branch of the Order of Druids, was summoned for neglecting to pay his subscription to the lodge. Mr. Murphy, the secretary, appeared as complainant, and explained that the case was brought under the 17th section of the Act. A verdict was given for the amount—£2 2s. 3d., with 1/6s. 9d. costs; in default, distress, or one month in gaol.

Heavy showers fell to-night.

WARREN.

FRIDAY.

The first mails that have reached us from Sydney for fifteen days arrived on Wednesday. Four mails that were overdue were waterbourned twelve miles from here.

FORBES.

FRIDAY.

The rush at Queen's Land, five miles from Forbes, is looking up. Gilmartin's party at No. 3, south of Prospectors, have washed 34 dwts. from two dishes of dirt, and the gold can be seen plainly all through. It is expected that a good run will be found.

breakers in search of him. The two horses were found on a sandhill, having crossed the creek, but no trace could be found of the aboriginal. Two years ago a mailman was drowned at the same place. The weather is now beautiful, but the roads are everywhere wretched.

ALBURY.

FRIDAY.

Heavy rain commenced at 5 o'clock this morning, and is likely to continue. The total rainfall for the week is 4.8 points.

WENTWORTH.

FRIDAY.

During the last few days, a death has occurred by drowning; a young man was accidentally shot; and another man was killed by a tree falling and breaking his back.

Last night, Captain Barclay, of the steamer Marano, now at Wentworth, left in a boat during a fit of religious excitement. The boat was found this morning down the river, and it is supposed that Barclay is drowned. He left in his cabin a letter, asking one or two steamers to pick him up on his way to Adelaide, leading to the supposition that he was proceeding along the river bank, in addition to the risk of being lost and being without food, the crooks are now too good to enable him to proceed. Search has been made, and the steamers have been asked to whistle during their journey.

The weather is boisterous, with rain, and the river is rising an inch daily. It is now 15 feet 7 inches. Grass is springing rapidly.

The Albany (s) passed with 933 bales of wool for South Australia. The Ruby (s) also passed to-day for the same destination, with 900 bales.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

Sir William Jervois and party arrived this afternoon from Sydney. They were received at Sandringham Railway Pier by a guard of honour, and proceeded to Government House.

The condemned man Lawrence continues quite unmoved as to his position. His case will, probably, be dealt with by the Executive early next week. He is attended by a Church of England clergyman.

A tender was accepted to-day for the construction of a new passenger platform at the Melbourne terminus. Early this morning, the steamer Lady Darling, from Newcastle, was ashore in the West Channel; but, after a little delay, was floated with assistance.

The small steamer Little Eastern is pursuing her way to Sydney, having been repaired at Waratah Bay. The city and suburban carrier has forwarded the great improvement effected in their position by the new regulations.

Correspondence produced by Colonel Scratchley shows that the matter of the dispute of Colonel Hutton was referred to him, but that Colonel Hutton, having offered explanations and expressed regret, Colonel Anderson accepted these regrets, and the Board of Inquiry was not held. This was dated the 1st of August, and Colonel Hutton now denies having expressed any regret.

Messrs. Berry and Long & Co. proceeded to Shepparton to-day, where they will to-night address a public meeting. The Ministeria party reached Benalla, but owing to the dreary rain the Shepparton tour was abandoned.

The Governor commences an inspection of volunteer order-rooms this evening.

Kirkcaldy on the Murray, is proclaimed an additional crossing-place for stock.

Rain has fallen at intervals all day. Reports from the country districts show that the rain is general.

Governor Welf left for Tasmania to-day.

The Inspector of Stock is making inquiries in reference to a report about infected cattle, near Melbourne, but the report is not credible.

His Excellency the Governor completed the inspection of the order-rooms next week. He is accompanied on his rounds by the members of the headquarters staff and Volunteer officers.

flowers had been brought in rich profusion from the city conservatories, and were arranged with the picturesque taste and artistic skill for which that unrivalled city architect is renowned. The flowers were lighted up by the electric light, and among the dark-green foliage, and especially for illuminating the fountain, which threw up a cloud of spray in the centre of the grounds, every drop of the sunny shaft shewing like jewels of every colour. Outside the fountain, the flowers were arranged in groups, and the red and white, in which the magnificent band of the Zephrus Guards displayed brilliant mace throughout the evening, occupying the two hours devoted to the concert. than such dummy-like doings.

For the Emperor here, and the so-called Saitan further up-country, at Djodjakarta, are but dummies, though they be the lineal descendants of a long line or royalty. Born to the purple, they still retain the title of Emperor, and are, in fact, no more than their windows look upon the fair lands over which they reign, but do not govern. Their power is impalpable—so superine, in fact, as scarcely to be felt. It has been appropriated by the Dutch, who supply its place by pensions, for which services have to be rendered in the collection of revenue, for the Hollander's exchequer.

These potentates, without power, have an allowance of an army of some thirty soldiers each—about as big an army as the King of the Princes of Monaco, for the protection of his little independent gathering of subjects, on the Mediterranean shore. This kind of honour is paid to the Dutch Governor, and to purchase. The negotiations, carried on in dumb movements, ended, at last, satisfactorily, and I could now go to the Emperor's levee, with some show of native propriety about me. I had noticed before that a European walking about in the heat of the day was an unpleasant sight; but now, in the torrid season, all other considerations, I became more than ever an object of interest to the natives. According to the custom of the country, I ought instead to have been taking an afternoon's sleep.

Especially and pleasantly noticeable is it that women have here the privilege of showing her face.
Half the nations of the East, if not three-fourths, carefully guard from the general gaze the female features, and so wrap up the figure of the woman in such a device as to leave nothing called, even by the most loose and free use of the eye. In Japan the feminine features are treated as they are in China, and not of Java to be the very vegetable wonder. Here the deadly tree before one, and a tree that I liked much as the others growing thereabout,

I asked, I believe, of tenk wood. The tree is, in fact, so deadly qualities, but such lay wholly in the bark, and the fruit is so good that it is of carbonic acid gas, or other poisonous instantly arose—produced by the presence of the advent volcano, and the chemical action going on beneath.
The Japanese natives believed that the evil influence passed here, and in some other few places in remote neighbourhoods, was due to the propertion of these. Those chances to sleep beneath its branches is not avails, and hence the trees caused their deaths!
The cause and effect on them. They told it to me, and I saw the cause of the work, which illustrated the theory of the work, which illustrated the theory in various ways. What you see in the picture of the work. What you see in the the girls at Girton (says Mr. Mansfield) a fine brigade, and they are doing very well, and, I think, will be of much use to the country. I consider simply appalling the other day to a fair student, who is herself well known, and who told me all sorts of tales of a few of their college friends who were distressed on their own account.

The Fiji Argus, of September 12, says that the High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific, his Excellency the Hon. Sir A. H. Gordon, visited Suva. The following is a brief outline of the course taken by the representative of the British Government in his tour of Germany, the United States, and Great Britain. A treaty, very similar to that with Germany, has been entered into by her Majesty's Government with the United States, and, in fact, research, whose power and right of sovereignty are now almost universally recognised by the natives, as it always has been by the majority of the white residents. A convention has also been signed with the United States, relating to the district of Apia, by which the Foreign Consul are appointed a municipal Board, with various powers of local government, and the right to appoint and dismiss a municipal neutral territory. A proclamation has also been issued cancelling the Tainua and Falepa parties against opposing the extension of the franchise to the natives, and warning all foreign residents against interference.

In witness whereof, the respective plenipotentiaries have signed the same, and affixed thereto their seals, Done at Paris, the twenty-ninth day of August, 1854, of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-fourth year.

The girls at Gilton (says the Advertiser) are organizing a fire brigade, and they are doing so very vigorously, and it is a spirit of thoroughness which I consider simply appalling. They are taking the other day to a fair of a young student, who is heralded up as being the first in the county in his class, and he is to be the prize of the contest. A few in their college are determined to contend on their own account.

FINLAY and CO., Goulburn, have received instructions from John W. Chisholm, Esq., to dispose of by private contract,

HIS MAGNIFICENT FREEHOLD PROPERTY, known as WOLLAGONG, situated 140 miles south from Sydney, 12 miles south of Goulburn, and about half-an-hour's drive from

This truly princely property is simply perfect in all its appointments. The climate is the finest in the colony, and the beauty of the surroundings is equal to the most fastidious taste; in short, one can, without any ostentation or fulsome description, be compared to a fabled monarch, and the most luxurious of his subjects.

MULOOKING HOUSE is situated near the Brendibee Lake, and as far as the eye can reach commands a most beautiful view of water, plains, and beautiful open forest land. The house is built of stone, and contains 17 rooms, including a hall, a billiard room, a dining room, a library, and three servants' rooms, pantry, larder, and closets.

[illegible]

The ESTATE contains about 20,000 acres of splendid grazing land, with its own seasonal lake, together with its pre-emptive leasehold—whole property is substantially fenced in and subdivided into large paddocks—each from 60 acres upwards. 8 smaller ones, 4 cultivation paddocks—the whole containing about 1000 head of cattle and 1000 sheep. STOCK RANGES are conducted by the proprietor during the last 20 years for the breeding of pure-blooded shorthorns and fattening c stock. Sales of young bulls huffers have regularly taken place, woolgathering has been a regular feature of the life of the district. The woolgathering income has been derived from stock grown and fattened on the estate, which have at all times realized the highest market price. In Sydney, the brand, J.W.C. being just celebrated throughout the colonies for its excellence. Sheep have been added much to the revenue of Woolgathering. From grazing for the colonies and adaptability of the soil for agricultural purposes, large tenancy could at once be created, which would yield handsome income, and the purchase would be all the more desirable in a splendid climate and a beautifully appointed estate.

For further particulars, apply to the Agents.

This selected little herd is mainly pure-bred, but Mr.
Langar does not object to import on a small scale to work it up, and to develop the variety, both naturally increasing. The ancestors would naturally breed to a certain extent, but the process of selection, of breeding choice, pure-bred females, for the best specimens, pure-bred sires, and, last particularly, supply the Austro-ones.

BELLINGER RIVER SAWMILLS.

Valuable Property, situated on the best part of the river, and having all the facilities for carrying on a large and lucrative trade in PINE, CEDAR, ASH, and HARDWOOD.

THE SAWMILL PLANT is second to none on the river, having a large and powerful engine, and a complete set of machinery, and the Planing, Moulding, and Matching Machines were laid down at great cost, and answer all the purposes in the way of machinery for the Sydney market.

THE MILL is erected on a block of land 41 acres in extent, and is within a distance of nearly 2000 feet to the river, and the district around it heavily timbered, insuring a certain supply of raw material.

The owner's house, and outbuildings, are extensive and in good order, and the equipment of this Property presents an opportunity for the realisation of a rapid fortune at a small outlay.

Extract from the SYDNEY DAILY TELEGRAPH.
 "Mr. E. R. Cole has published a really beautiful series of photographic pictures, which he terms the 'Royal Sydney Souvenir.' It contains twenty-four illustrations of the principal buildings of Sydney, together with some of the most interesting suburban scenes, including a remarkably realistic view of the gap at South Head, where the Dunbar was wrecked. Visitors to the city will find it a most interesting thing to see, and it will give their friends at home a good idea of everything and its surroundings so fully and fairly that their inclination for procuring this elegantly and conveniently published souvenir."

“The Royal Sydney Souvenir.”—This is a publication of Mr. E. R. Cole, George and King streets, of a number of magnificent plates of the principal public buildings of Sydney, including the new Exhibition, with several harbour and country views added. The whole of the plates are in book form, with a handsome cover, and as they are all rich and clear beyond anything of the kind we have seen, they will, as pictures, form indeed an acceptable souvenir for visitors.
